Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurThe perfect beach read for 2017!Inspired by a true story, Watching the Wind Blow is a dramatic tale that takes place on a yacht in the Aegean Sea, immersing us in the events that change one womans life forever as we sail under the Mediterranean Sun.Married with a young baby and living with her mother in law, Irini has found herself a comfortable life after a traumatic childhood as an orphan. But Irinis husband Petta is unable to bear hearing the stories from her past, and so Irini carries her burdens alone, often haunted by her troubled upbringing. On a day like any other, Irini leaves home to tend to her cleaning job on board a yacht. But little does she know this day will turn out to be unlike any day she could ever have imagined, and alarm sets in as she feels the boat set sail, discovering she is not on board alone. Surrounded by endless blue sky and calm clear waters, Irini realises the tranquillity is an illusion as it dawns on her that a stranger has taken desperate measures, and her life is now at risk. Who is on board with Irini? And what will it take to make it safely home to her husband and baby? Finding she has more in common with the stranger than Irini could have anticipated, this thrilling novel reveals how the courage taken to confront a painful past has the potential to save her future.

Biographie de l'auteur Sara Alexi was born in Oxford, England. She has travelled widely and now splits her time between her home in England and a tiny rural village in the Peloponnese, in Greece, where she is (very slowly!) renovating a ruined stone farmhouse, whilst observing the Greek way of life and absorbing the culture, to enrich her vision for both writing and painting. Sara began writing later in life. In school English lessons were a time of confusion, books indecipherable hieroglyphics. Dyslexia was not well understood then and no support was available. The joy of reading and writing were cancelled by the teacher's red pen ... Despite her dyslexia Sara qualified as a psychotherapist and ran her own practice for years. Her artistic nature was, at that time, confined to painting and she exhibited widely. In a casual conversation with a client she discovered that Agatha Christie, Jules Verne and Hans Christian Andersen were all dyslexic, and Sara's perspective changed. The world of fiction opened to her with this shift in perception and she has been a prolific writer ever since. Her 'Greek Village Series' has been very well received and provides a keenly observed, compassionate insight into the Greek people and culture, and the human condition in general.
